Expedia TAAP

Deferred Payment

How to book

Deferred payment allows you to book pre-paid property rates without the need for immediate payment, giving you the flexibility to pay 7 days before the free cancellation date.

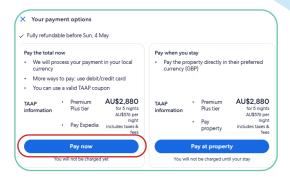

s ibility

1. Select an eligible rate

a) Travel advisors can now book a trip 365 days in advance and pay using deferred payment.

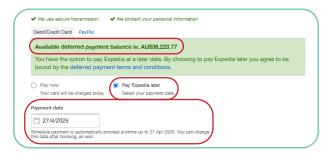

Some travellers like to plan and book their trips in advance. Extending the booking window for deferred payments from 280 days to 365 days means you can continue to free up cashflow and satisfy the needs of travellers who like to book a year in advance

b) Available for refundable standalone and package rates where Expedia takes the payment, not the property.

2. Reserve using deferred payment

- a) On the checkout page, look for the deferred payment green banner.
- b) Check your agency's deferred payment balance. If your balance is too low, you can pay off other deferred payment bookings, which will add credit to your balance.
- c) To book using deferred payment, select the option to 'Pay Expedia later'. As a default this is 7 days prior to the free cancellation date, however you can change this date now or after the booking has been made.

3. Manage deferred payments

- a) You can access your deferred payment bookings from 'Trips' or by clicking on the 'Manage deferred bookings' link from the homepage.
- b) From the list of bookings, you can click Edit to change the date the credit card will be charged.
- c) Changing the payment date: As a default, your payment date is seven days before the cancellation is due. Click Edit and proceed by following the steps to bring forward the payment date (you can not make it later).
- d) Changing the credit card: You may need to change the credit card used, click on Edit, and change the information. Double-check that the number added is correct. If the payment fails, you risk the reservation being cancelled. Don't worry, we will notify you via email if this happens.
